EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The 5th Biennial Conference carried the theme “The Future of Legal Practice in the Caribbean – Catalyst for Regional Success?” and was held from 13-15 December 2018 in Kingston, Jamaica. This summary captures a three-day programme of presentations, plenary and concurrent sessions, networking breaks and interactive dialogue at the conference, geared towards expanding the capacity to address current and future developments in legal practice.

The conference upheld the tradition of bringing together the world’s leading legal minds to discuss the future of legal practice in the Caribbean canvassing the latest thinking on Intellectual Property (IP); emerging technology trends that will transform the court; and topics of interest to the future Government leaders.

The CCJ Academy for Law (the Academy) recognizes the way in which legal services are being provided is changing and the potential for further change is great. This will impact and, by extension, transform legal services, the nature and role of lawyers, the courts and the broader dispute resolution system. As such, the 5th Biennial Conference highlighted three (3) main streams:

- The Law as a Facilitator of Business and Development
- Legal Issues pertaining to Intellectual Property
- Access to Justice

The focus of the 2018 conference combined a detailed analysis of contemporary legal topics through regionally relevant lenses, as well as parallel European Union law developments with interactive panel discussions delivered by experienced practitioners describing new and noteworthy initiatives relevant to the conference theme. It also provided valuable networking opportunities and set the stage for legal professionals from both common law and civil law jurisdictions.
Introduction

This Report encapsulates the findings of the review of the planning and execution phases of the Conference. It serves to mark the milestone of the 5th Biennial Conference as well as to provide an objective basis for the planning and execution of activities of the Academy over the next two (2) years, culminating in the 6th Biennial Conference in 2020.

The 5th Biennial Conference of the CCJ Academy, the educational arm of the Caribbean Court of Justice (the CCJ or the Court), was held over the course of two (2) and a half days from 13 – 15 December 2018 at the Jamaica Pegasus in Kingston, Jamaica. This has been the first conference since its rebranding from the Caribbean Academy for Law and Court Administration (CALCA) to CCJ Academy for Law.

Organisation & Planning

THE CONFERENCE

Concept

The staging of the 5th Biennial Conference was a partnership between the CCJ Academy and the General Legal Council (GLC). The CCJ Academy is intended to provide interesting, informative and innovative perspectives on the rules and the roles of law, particularly International Law. The General Legal Council has various statutory mandates and responsibilities pursuant to the Legal Profession Act, including the upholding of standards of professional conduct and the application of those standards to attorneys-at-law in Jamaica in order to regulate the conduct of the practise of law in Jamaica. For attorneys-at-law from Jamaica, the conference offered an opportunity to earn continuing legal professional development credits.

Aims and Objectives

The Biennial Conference is lauded as the flagship event of the Academy and is held to promote and advance legal education. The 4th Biennial Conference which was also hosted jointly by the Academy and the General Legal Council, was held in October 2016 in the island of Saint Maarten.

This year’s Conference in partnership with the General Legal Council was held in Kingston, Jamaica, and focused on bringing together members of local and regional bar associations, the judiciary, government officials, regulators and other stakeholders to discuss legal issues, with particular focus on the future of legal practice in the Caribbean. This was a conference that attracted the legal and academic luminaries both of the region and internationally.

This 5th Biennial Conference provided a platform for the Academy to continue its mandate in the advancement of knowledge, education, learning, research, and practical application of Law and the administration of justice in the Caribbean geared towards the development of regional integration law and Caribbean jurisprudence.

The aims and objectives include, but are not limited to:

1. Review of developments in the legal environment of the contracting Parties, as served by the Court, the Academy and its partners;
2. Review of legal education and requirements for the legal profession in the 21st century;
3. Review of governance and administration of legal education in the Caribbean and mutually agreed areas of interests in accordance with the parties’ respective objects;
4. Assessment of the need for continuous professional development in the legal profession;
5. Tutelage in international and comparative law to achieve and maintain a high level of awareness of, and advocacy and passion for, regional integration law and Caribbean jurisprudence.
6. Review and/or development of linkages amongst the Parties in furtherance of their respective objects;
7. Joint programme development and/or review in furtherance of the mandate and the objectives of partners;
8. Joint teaching and/or research tailored towards the promotion of legal education, legal issues affecting the Parties, judicial administration, court systems and court management support activities;
9. Mobility of faculty, scholars and students between institutions;
10. Sharing or creation of educational materials and resources; and
11. Development of a network of judicial officers, and stakeholders in the legal profession in furtherance of the development of international law reform geared towards shaping the future of the legal profession regionally and throughout the world.

Each Biennial Conference provides the Academy with an opportunity to partner with its many stakeholders to propel its mandate forward.

Target Audience

The target audience for the 5th Biennial Conference comprised a broad spectrum of the legal fraternity and included:

1. Judges
2. Legal Practitioners (including lawyers at the public and private bar)
3. Academic Faculties
4. Regional and International Jurists
5. Public Sector Officials
6. Advisory Firms
7. Private Sector Executives
8. Educators and Researchers
9. Representatives from Multilateral Organizations
10. Students from the regional Law Schools

This brought together renowned local and international speakers in their respective fields to educate conference delegates in a format that encouraged inspiration, stimulation and interaction.

Conference Setup

Past conference experiences have made the organising committee keenly aware of the challenges that lie in executing the management committee’s goal of a flawless event. The success of the conference is mainly attributed to early planning and detailed management of all aspects of the execution from pre- to post-event activities. The conference featured presentations from distinguished regional and international jurists who facilitated interactive plenary and concurrent sessions.
The Secretariat on-site team worked diligently behind the scenes in advance to ensure that the three-day conference would have a seamless start, engaging sessions and a satisfying conclusion. On the first day, Thursday 13 December 2018, the 5th Biennial Conference was off to a great start, all logistics in place at the Pegasus Hotel’s Grand Jamaica Ballroom for the opening ceremony.

Registration

The team worked tirelessly to register the large number of conference registrants at the 5th Biennial Conference.

The 5th Biennial Conference brought together lawyers from over the region representing all parts of the legal profession including those in IP private practice, in-house counsels, human rights advocates, judges, bar leaders, academics, regulators and government representatives. This unique mix of viewpoints provided a rich environment for discussion, debate and learning as well as the opportunity to develop lasting business relationships and lifelong friendships.

The full conference registration fee covered conference materials, networking breaks, lunch and welcome cocktail event hosted by the Office of the Attorney General of Jamaica, the Honourable Mrs Marlene Malahoo Forte MP, QC, JP and launch of the Criminal Bench Book for Magistrates and Parish Court Judges by the JURIST Project.

The conference website www.ccjacademy.org allowed interested registrants to easily access up to date information concerning registration, agenda, topics, sponsorship, speakers, venue and other relevant details regarding CLPD credits that applied to the attorneys-at-law from Jamaica.

Pre-registration was made available both online, using RegOnline, and at the CCJ and the GLC at discounted registration fees:

All delegates and speakers were given conference bags inclusive of branded materials, badges and lanyards; direct exposure to exhibitor’s tables as well as materials like the conference magazine to enhance their conference experience.

Individual conference day rates were introduced during the regular registration band based on demand from the Jamaican market.

Marketing & Communications Strategy

An engaging marketing strategy was rolled out to capture as many participants as possible. Targeted marketing efforts commenced in August 2018 intensifying right up to the start of the three-day conference in December 2018.
Website

The new website for the CCJ Academy for Law (www.ccjacademy.org) was the repository for most of the information about the Conference, speakers, agenda and flyers; much of the other promotional materials also pointed to the website. This website also facilitated the online registration for the conference through RegOnline.

Facebook

Through the rebranded Facebook page, updates were shared and promoted to the public. The current audience of this page is 2,936 followers.
Posts were published regularly, increasing in frequency as the conference date drew closer. Updates also included speaker profiles, conference updates and registration deadlines, creating an engaging variety of posts. All posts were visually stimulating with accompanying pictures and were linked back to the CCJ Academy’s website.

The audience reached through the sponsored posts totalled 17,896 persons. Posts without the sponsored push reached 4,653 persons.
The CCJ Twitter page currently has a following of 2,281 followers. Eight tweets about the conference were sponsored and reached total audiences of 106,286 persons. Posts which were not sponsored reached 6,582 persons.

Sponsorships

The Academy and the General Legal Council would like to acknowledge the generous support of this year’s sponsors and to underscore the fact that without this support the conference would not have been possible. Sponsorship helps defray some of the operational costs and most notably helps to allow deserving students from the law schools and young attorneys to attend conferences like these that would ordinarily be out of their reach.
The JURIST Project was the main sponsor of the 5th Biennial Conference. The booth attracted lots of conference attendees and received great reviews throughout the 3 days.

Logistics

LOCATION: WHY KINGSTON?

History, beauty and culture are all rolled into Jamaica’s capital city; there was no better location to complement the 5th Biennial Conference. It is also the judicial hub and boasts a large cross-section of the island’s legal practitioners.

Since the partnering body for the conference was located in Jamaica, it was logistically sound to have support there from the GLC. GLC members from the organizing committee were able to make site visits to the Jamaica Pegasus Hotel as needed, as well as secure travel and protocol arrangements.

AIRPORT & HOTEL SHUTTLE TRANSFERS

The Conference provided complimentary shuttle service to and from the Norman Manley International Airport to the Jamaica Pegasus for the CCJ judges, contracted speakers and registered judicial officers who could be identified.

PROTOCOL

Protocol services were extended primarily to CCJ judges, registered judges and speakers by the Jamaican Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Court Management Services and the CCJ staff. Attendees identified for protocol service were received at the airport by local protocol professionals from the and transported to the Jamaica Pegasus which facilitated the bulk of overseas-based conference attendees. These persons also received protocol facilitation upon their departure.

Signing of Memorandum of Understanding

One of the highlights for Day 1 was the signing of the Memorandum of Understanding between the CCJ Academy for Law and the Council of Legal Education. This signalled the Council and the Academy’s commitment to working together and collaborating in the review, development and advancement of legal education, jurisprudence and the legal profession in the Caribbean, recognizing that the Academy, in its capacity as the educational arm of the Court, acts as a catalyst for training, education, research and in upholding its overriding objective in the development of high standards of excellence in the administration of justice throughout the Caribbean region. The Academy looks forward to establishing similar relationships with other institutions geared towards similar initiatives.

Welcome Cocktail Event

The Attorney General’s office hosted an Opening Cocktail on the night of 13 December 2018 at the Garden Terrace of the Jamaica Pegasus. This event was attended by many dignitaries, diplomats, Government Ministers and distinguished members of the regional bar associations and legal fraternity.

The cocktail event provided an excellent opportunity for many persons to mingle and network and further recap the first day’s events while discussing their expectations for the following conference days.
Some light chatter between Attorney-at-law Mr Tim Prudhoe and Mr Reginald Armour at the Welcome Cocktail Reception.

Dr Lukas Vanhonnaeker, one of the Conference speakers, having an in-depth conversation with CCJ Communication and Information Manager, Ms Charmaine Wright.
The sessions on the second conference day focused on “Legal issues pertaining to Intellectual Property”. This facilitated a gathering of IP leaders, and their stakeholders, as the Caribbean continues to grapple with measuring, monetising and, most importantly, working with creators to ensure their assets are protected and enforced. They were able to listen to the plans for the future, hear the challenges faced by those working on active projects and learn about the solutions that are working for others.
One of the main highlights of Day 2 was the launch of the Criminal Bench Book for Magistrates and Parish Court Judges. This initiative was one of the hallmarks of The Judicial Reform and Institutional Strengthening (JURIST) Project, the Conference’s presenting sponsor.

The Bench Book comprises a compilation of rules of procedure distilled from primary legislation, case law, policy and, significantly, the contributions and experience of judicial officers practicing in the English-speaking Caribbean. It includes guidance on judgment writing and giving of reasons, procedures for dealing with vulnerable defendants and witnesses, sentencing options and methodology and extradition proceedings, among others. The launch featured many distinguished speakers such as Mr. Walter Bernyck, Counsellor and Head, Development Cooperation, High Commission of Canada, the Honourable Mme Justice of Appeal Yorke-Soo Hon and the Honourable Mr Justice Mark Mohammed, two (2) distinguished members of the Court of Appeal in Trinidad and Tobago and who played an instrumental role in the project.
On Day 3, the last day, the conference stream primarily focused on “Facilitating Access to Justice” and examined how access to justice continues to be a critical focus in the practice of law and justice delivery. Speakers for these sessions reflected on recent developments and innovations and posited how to best prepare for the emerging challenges and opportunities on the access to justice agenda. The Conference offers an opportunity to consider how the judiciary, lawyers and other stakeholders can continue to efficiently deliver high-quality services and improve access to justice for all. It was a fitting end to the 5th Biennial Conference leaving all attendees invigorated and with much to ponder upon moving forward.

CLOSING CEREMONY

The 5th Biennial Conference ended on a remarkable note; it was what many people described as a fantastic conference and an excellent opportunity for discussion and networking. The impressive speakers provided all attendees with some outstanding insights, food for thought and interesting presentations.

The Honourable Mr Justice Hayton gave the closing remarks followed by the Honourable Mr Justice Dennis Morrison. The audience was again graced with a cultural item. In true Jamaican style, Mr Ian Hird serenaded the attendees with the sweet melodies of his saxophone, playing various renditions of the music of Bob Marley other reggae stalwarts. This brought the Conference to an end with many anticipating the 6th Biennial Conference.
Rapporteurs

The 5th Biennial Conference afforded another opportunity for the CCJ Academy for Law and the General Legal Council to partner with the regional legal educational institutions and provided a platform from which students can benefit. As such, the Academy and GLC sought and obtained sponsorship to facilitate attendance at the conference for students from the Norman Manley Law School, the University of the West Indies, Faculty of Law, Mona and the University of Technology. These students also performed the role of Student Rapporteurs at the conference with the guidance and leadership of the CCJ’s Judicial Counsels.

Two (2) rapporteurs – one (1) judicial counsel supervisor and one (1) law student rapporteur – were assigned to each concurrent session for the purpose of recording and reporting on the entirety of the proceedings for each session. The plenary sessions comprised a team of two (2) law student rapporteurs and one (1) judicial counsel supervisor.

The objective of each rapporteur was to report the main concepts and results given by the speakers and to keep track of the questions and answers of the session. At the end of the session, the rapporteurs collaborated and prepared a short report with the most significant conclusions of the session.

The students benefitted tremendously from these experiences and got the esteemed opportunity to network with the region’s finest legal minds and also to experience the vast wealth of knowledge expounded in the various sessions. Many described this opportunity as the pinnacle of their legal studies thus far.
Conference Papers

All conference presenters were requested to prepare a paper for accreditation from the General Legal Council of Jamaica. Papers and presentations were made available online through the Academy’s website at www.ccjacademy.org/downloads/.

Conference Magazine & Memorabilia

Each participant registered for the duration of the conference received a branded tote bag, pen, notepad, key ring, badge and lanyard along with a copy of the Conference magazine when they arrived at the Conference Secretariat’s registration desk. Caribbean Export Development Agency also provided complimentary magazines for patrons who visited the CCJ booth.

Testimonials

The conference was an outstanding success based on feedback from registrants, speakers and various stakeholders. Following the conclusion of the Conference, speakers and attendees shared their observations about the 5th Biennial Conference with the Organizing Committee.

A selection of responses is presented below:
THE HON. MADAM JUSTICE MIRA DEAN-ARMORER, JUDICIARY TRINIDAD & TOBAGO

“In December 2018, the Caribbean Academy for Law hosted its fifth biennial conference in Kingston, Jamaica. I attended the fourth conference in Sint Maarten in 2016 and I was convinced that it was impossible for the organisers of the Academy to improve on the Sint Maarten conference. I was so wrong.

The Kingston conference was an intense intellectual experience, treating attendees to erudite and highly qualified presenters from the Caribbean and the Commonwealth.

Anyone attending, with no knowledge of the law of intellectual property, would have left with a great appreciation of the subject and, more importantly, an increased appetite to learn more of the principles of intellectual property and its critical function in the cultural and economic development of the Caribbean region.

The Kingston conference was intellectually refreshing and invigorating, leaving me motivated to return to my jurisdiction and continue the quest for excellence as a Judge.

Congratulations to the organizers of The CCJ Academy for Law!”

DR. KUSHA HARAKSINGH, FOUNDOING DEAN, FACULTY OF LAW, UWI, ST. AUGUSTINE AND IMMEDIATE PAST CHAIRMAN, CARICOM COMPETITION COMMISSION

“An outstanding example of what a good law conference should aim to achieve: thoughtful programme, stimulating presentations, distinguished and accessible participants and ample opportunity to pursue the conversations outside the formal setting. Great exposure for the younger fraternity.”

DR. LUKAS VANHONNAEKER, POST DOCTORATE FELLOW AND CONFERENCE SPEAKER

“The organization of the conference was simply flawless and very impressive, especially in the light of the remarkable number of people that participated to the event.

I also wanted to thank you and the organization committee for giving me the opportunity to participate to this important event. I enjoyed, very much the conference and had a great time during my presentation and during the exchange of ideas with the participants that followed. It was also a great pleasure to meet a lot of lawyers and scholars that I generally do not have the opportunity to meet. It allowed me to learn a great deal and to discover new perspectives.

MR. ROGER ARCHIBALD, ADJUNCT PROF OF LAW AND ATTORNEY AT LAW

“I found the second day was the most instructive and inspiring. The session on Defamation really captured the audience; the style of delivery and passion for the topic were evident and it was well-researched with case law to prove all points presented.

Another highlight was President Saunders as he set the stage for the excellence exhibited throughout the conference.”
Mrs Racquel Halliburton, Attorney at Law

“This was an excellent conference; the variety and knowledge of speakers were excellent and they all kept within their timeframe.”

Mr Brian Reece, Student

“Most conferences are one third rubbish, one third mediocre and only one third of them is informative. However, this one was excellent from start to finish.”

The Hon. Madam Justice Nadia Kangaloo, Judiciary Trinidad & Tobago

The presenters displayed the expected extensive knowledge of their respective disciplines. I was particularly impressed with the ease with which this information was delivered, laced with topical content and sound data. This choice of exponents by the Academy and the engaging approach to subject matter made for immediate assimilation, and consequently active participation, by the attendees.

I attended for the Intellectual Property component of the Conference and left with the benefits of feeling intellectually boosted and thirsting for more knowledge in this dynamic area.

The CCJ Academy for Law Conference is a must for my Conference Calendar!”

Mr Jason Nathu, Speaker, Attorney-at-Law/Tutor, Hugh Wooding Law School

“I was truly impressed with the modern and progressive agenda and the opportunity to learn from subject matter experts across the region in the spheres of intellectual property law, access to justice and business and development. I wish that I could have attended all the sessions rather than having to pick during the concurrent ones but am happy that most of the presentations are available for download on the CCJ website.

Congratulations to the Academy on an excellent conference! I look forward to attending the 6th Biennial Conference in 2020!”
Conclusion

Overall, the 5th Biennial Conference was a resounding success. While there was an initial expectation of circa 300 registrants, the enthusiasm of the registrants was overwhelming, and over 450 persons were registered. The conference also enabled participants to build networks, thereby facilitating the sharing of information and helping registrants to utilise the knowledge to better understand the legal issues relating to intellectual property and the future of legal practice in the Caribbean.

The support of the attendees has added significant value to our conference. The Academy in partnership with GLC has received feedback on the 5th Biennial Conference via the Conference evaluation form, emails and general discussions. Feedback has been largely positive, with the including of some constructive criticisms which will be taken forward. The majority of attendees felt that the conference laid a platform to allow easy navigation and networking opportunities, whilst maintaining a comprehensive agenda with renowned international and national speakers. Thanks to all of our participants, special guests, and sponsors for an overwhelming success.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Winston Anderson, Chairman of the Academy at the end of a successful conference.
